Royal St. George's
Sandwich, Kent

2011 was the last time The Open came to the South-East of England. Affectionately known as the St Andrews of the South, 2020 will be the 15th time the Championship has been held at this grand old course.

Royal St. George's represents a stern test for all players with only three previous Open winners here having been below par, including Greg Norman's memorable triumph in 1993.
